

Anthony J. Pack

General Manager

A decade after joining Eastern Municipal Water District as a project coordinator in 1990, Anthony J. Pack was appointed general manager effective Sept. 4, 2001. Prior to his latest appointment, he was deputy general manager of operations and administration.

EMWD is a water wholesaler and retailer, supplying water to about 560,000 customers in Riverside County and is one of 26 member agencies that form The Metropolitan Water District of Southern California. EMWD also operates five regional wastewater reclamation facilities for about 190,000 sewer service connections, and is the fourth largest user of reclaimed water in California.

Mr. Pack has served as president and vice president of the California Municipal Utilities Association (CMUA), a statewide association of publicly owned utilities and currently serves as a board member of the Santa Ana Watershed Project Authority (SAWPA) and the California Council for Excellence (CCE).

Before joining the District, Pack served 20 years with the U. S. Marine Corps in posts throughout the United States, Vietnam, Japan and the Middle East. While in his last position at Camp Pendleton, Mr. Pack held a position comparable to that of a city manager. In that capacity, his duties included responsibility for the base water supply, sewage collection and treatment, and the public works and engineering departments. He retired as a lieutenant colonel in 1990.

Pack earned his bachelor of arts degree from the University of Connecticut and a master's degree from the University of Southern California.

He and his wife, Kelly, live in Fallbrook. They have two grown sons, and two grandsons. When away from the office, Pack can be found off the coast scuba diving or fishing.
